McDonough Museum of Art, The Butler Institute of American Art, Stambaugh Auditorium, Powers Auditorium, the Beecher Center, Meshel Hall, Maag Library, and Kilcawley Center.

The college holds as its major objective the highest quality of instruction, including pre-professional training in areas such as studio art, applied music, communication studies, telecommunication studies, theater and dance; the training of teachers¹; and the offering of a wide variety of courses to non-majors from all areas of the University.

The major programs in the college constitute an excellent basis for a liberal education. Students not pursuing degrees in the College of Creative Arts and Communication are welcomed and encouraged to participate in special opportunities in art, music, communication, or theater and dance as a means of broadening and complementing their university experience.

Another important objective of the college is to provide the University community maximum opportunity for experiencing the creative arts.
